

and beyond all others, should resist this disease which crucifies the soul and attenuates the spirit, because the call of his blood, his mission and his heritage should surmount the siren song of practicality. I would offer an humble word of admonition and warning. Our is a people which still lives because none other has lived so long. Our is a form of supremacy in the nobility of divine and natural selection. We must not become submerged. We must not become submerged. We must not become submerged.

"What then is the special fitness which has armed the Jew against the combined attacks of time and chance and mar? What quality, what inner power, has kept him uncoerced and incoercible? Of a certainty his spiritual quality, his grip upon the real vitality which flows from the soil. The Jew has been the distinctive spiritual element in the world's society. He has been a labor of light and leading, the giving of his own divine attributes to mankind. Yet, if spiritual quality be the particular contribution, once he falls in this, his mission, once he strips himself of this, his robe of office, his place in the economy of nature becomes untenanted and his usefulness inconceivable. It is a work which will employ no ingenuity and harbor no skill. If the Jew will not perform the service he must give up his tenure of life.

Creeds Have Their Changes.
"Behold the crisis. I am not one of those who mistake alterations for premonitions of an approaching dissolution. Since all things suffer change, save God, the Truth, creeds must also have their shifts and turns. New religious needs are felt; new religious helps are sought. Dogmas must grow, not stop on heights of self-sufficiency. So long as the mutations are merely in form, so long as the variations are only in outward rite, they are beyond all cavil. So long as the substance, the essence of Judaism remains intact, there is no peril. But when the transformation is vital, when it touches the genius and would uproot the foundations of our religion, the threshold of the temple has been crossed. I charge that a laudable desire to do away with all formalism has found its culmination in still hollower convention. I charge the praiseworthy obligation to the modern world has reached its consummation in the very evil from which escape was sought. I charge that discipline has been driven forth by convenience, another product of materialism, inducing mummery and lip-service, supporting infatuation and playing a game of eternities.

Another Leader Needed.
"Many centuries have gone since the ignominious times when Israel was the toy of the Greek—a polluted temple belonging to a people which day by day was forgetting its God. The pleasures conceived by Greece, decreed and decayed, had almost through the centuries' corruption almost destroyed his spiritual integrity. Israel had indeed fallen on evil days and evil tongues when, above the barbarous dissonance of Babel and his revelers, was heard the call to arms, the voice of the true God, the voice of a living faith and nation instinct with triumphant life and exalting enthusiasm.

"Who knows that another Judas Maccabaeus may not issue from our ranks to root out and exterminate the unbroken whole, the withdrawn, the indifferent, the disaffected and the steadfast? Who knows that he may not stamp himself forever upon his race, so that in far distant ages the man shall live in prayer, and the old man long to meet him in the world beyond?

"It seems to me that in apparent ease, our greatest battles must yet be fought; that in a temporal security the lesson of self-possession is to be thoroughly learned, the heart of the dead, wordless spirituality becomes more and more the keynote of our lives, the career of civilization will hasten its unfolding to the sweet and final consummation.

Business Session To-Day.
The address was followed by a reception to the delegates given by Richmond Lodge, No. 88, in the auditorium of Murphy's Hotel.

The convention assemblies for business this morning at 10 o'clock. At 4 P. M. a committee with motor cars will meet the delegates at the Grace Street entrance of Murphy's Hotel for an automobile ride, visiting the principal points of interest in the city. At 9 o'clock to-night there will be a reception tendered the delegates at the Jefferson Club, carriages for which will call at the hotel at 8:30 P. M.

A pleasant feature of the day was the reception tendered the delegates by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Levy at their residence, 2202 West Grace Street, yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Pinchot Coming Home.
Liverpool, May 22.—Gifford Pinchot, the former chief forester of the United States, was a passenger on board the steamer Arabic, which sailed for New York to-day.

CONFLICT OVER FIXING OF RATES

terests at Pensacola, or whether it is a natural advantage belonging to that port, the fact appears that, for years Pensacola has enjoyed a larger business in the distribution of fish throughout the State of Alabama than has Mobile. By a readjustment of the State rates out of Mobile, whether so intended or not, the process of taking from Pensacola, through lower State-made transportation charges, what its superior zeal or its greater natural advantages have given to it has commenced and is now going on.

"On principle it is clear that a carrier operating through two or more States is but one vehicle of commerce, and all traffic moved by it, whether State or interstate, ought, when the general transportation conditions are the same, to bear its just proportion of the cost of operation, and ought to yield no more and no less than its just proportion of the revenues of the carrier.

"Any other theory is fundamentally inequitable, illogical and unreasonable. It may be, but on that point we are not concerned. The Congress may constitutionally protect interstate commerce, as well as the carriers that are engaged in interstate transportation, by requiring that any State traffic moved by such a carrier shall bear its just proportion of the cost of operation and that, with such an end in view, it may authorize this commission to fix minimum rates, at least, for State traffic when moved by carriers engaged also in interstate transportation, or that it may provide that no carrier shall be permitted to operate on the basis of a rate which would stand the test of scrutiny by the courts, under the Constitution as it now stands, and if so, whether it would be desirable from the standpoint of a broad public policy, are questions that must ultimately be determined by the legislative power, and therefore cannot profitably be discussed by the commission in this proceeding."

SEE COMET, DROP DEAD

Wanderer in Heavens Causes Excitement in Alabama.
Tallahassee, May 22.—The appearance of the comet this evening caused intense excitement here. Congregations of several thousands of people gathered in the square and gazed at the celestial visitor.

Major Ruth Jordan, daughter of a farmer living two miles from here, was called to the door of her home to see the comet, and immediately fell dead. Physicians assigned heart failure as the cause. An unknown negro on the depot platform was shown the comet, and instantly dropped dead.

BODIES RECOVERED

Wreck of City of Salt Lake Is Giving Up Its Dead.
St. Louis, Mo., May 22.—The bodies of Mrs. Arthur M. Patterson, of Savannah, Tenn., and William J. Pickett, a St. Louis salesman, victims of the City of Salt Lake wreck at Glenpark, Mo., last week, were recovered to-day.

That of Mrs. Patterson was picked up by fishermen near Heruleanum, Mo., three miles south of Glenpark, and that of Pickett a half mile away. It is believed both bodies were in the wreckage until it was dynamited last Wednesday night. The bodies of Mrs. Patterson's two-year-old son and three others are still to be recovered.

Boosting William Sulzer.
New York, May 22.—A number of business and professional men met here this afternoon to organize the Sulzer campaign club, which will strive to further the candidacy of Representative William Sulzer, of this city, for the Democratic nomination for Governor of New York. A letter from Representative Sulzer was read, in which he expressed his approval and appreciation.

POWERS TO FACE A GRAVE CRISIS

Persia Is Latest Apple of Discord Among European Nations.

GERMANY TO PROTEST

Will Resent Anglo-Russian Attempt to Secure Commercial Advantages.

Berlin, May 22.—Unless all indications fail, Europe will very shortly be face to face with another international political situation of the same grave character as the Moroccan crisis of 1905-06. The apple of discord is Persia, and the stormy petrel is Germany. It became known this week that the Kaiser's ambassador to London, Count Wolff Metternich, has been instructed to register the most vigorous protest at the British Foreign Office against Anglo-Russian attempts to monopolize economic and financial opportunities in Persia. Count Pourtales, the German ambassador at Petersburg, has been directed to make similar representations to the Russian government.

Germany has come to the sudden conclusion that the scheme for the division of Persia into two British Russian spheres of influence, does not safeguard on principle, the open door as rigorously as the Anglo-Russian convention of 1907 purports to do. Fearing the door may be slammed in the face of German opportunity in the Shah's domain, the Kaiser's government decided to strike diplomatically for the assertion of what are held to be the Fatherland's endangered rights.

Will Make Report.

A representative of the Deutsche Bank, who has been investigating the commercial and financial opportunities in Persia, is now en route to Berlin from Teheran, and the German plans and ambitions will not be disclosed until he makes his report to the German government. Recollecting the manner in which Germany, Austria and Italy early in the century, won on the Anglo-Russian-French entente in the Balkan crisis has apparently determined Germany to play a similar card in Persia. It is a notoriously open secret that England was the only member of the group which was ready to fight for the overthrow of the Russian autocracy, and that Austria-Hungary got its way simply because neither Russia nor France was inclined to go to war.

German diplomatic strategists figure that the domestic political crisis in England, as well as the situation consequent upon the death of King Edward, makes it impossible for Britain on this occasion to assert itself as forcibly or resolutely as it was prepared to do during the Balkan crisis. Germany figures, in short, that the determination of the international situation is such that no really effective resistance can or will be offered to them.

As soon as Kaiser Wilhelm has returned from England and given his final sanction to the sale of Persia, following the death of the King, it may be expected that the German policy with regard to Persia will rapidly develop. Austria-Hungary, of course, is expected to show its gratitude for German services in the Balkan conflict by backing up the German position in Persia.

Still another factor which enters into Germany's calculations is that a Persian crisis would provide patriotic diversion from the bitter internal struggle for franchise reform in Prussia. Germany, it has long been surmised that the ruling power in Berlin would be compelled to resort to this familiar Bismarckian expedient for deflecting attention from this ugly and unmanageable domestic situation.

SUMPTUOUSLY HOUSED

Ambassador Kerensky Has Leased Palace in Vienna.
Vienna, May 22.—In acquiring a lease of Kolowrat Palace, Richard C. Kerensky, the American ambassador, will be more sumptuously housed than any former representative of his country. The palace was built by Baron Albert Rothschild, who committed suicide last July because of an alleged love affair with a Chicago girl. The palace has spacious state apartments and occupies a commanding situation.

HOME SICKNESS LEADS HIM BACK

After Nine Years of Freedom, William Whiteway Must Face Trial.

IS HELD FOR MURDER

Unsuspected in West, He Couldn't Resist Call of New York.

New York, May 22.—Homesickness besetting him for nine years, during which time he roamed through the West a free and unsuspected man, finally drove William Whiteway, thirty-six, "wanted" as one of a trio who murdered Theodore Johanson here in 1901—back like a homing pigeon to New York, to face yesterday into the clutches of the police, who for the nine years have been on the lookout for him.

He came back disguised by beard, mustache and the changes wrought by years. Feeling thoroughly secure from detection, he slipped from the freight train which brought him here, "broke" but happy. For hours he tramped the familiar streets for love of which he had risked his liberty. Then, exhausted and starving, he accented a man on One Hundred and Twenty-ninth Street yesterday afternoon.

"Please give me some money, I must eat," he pleaded.

The man looked straight into his eyes. "Hello, Whiteway!" he said. It was Detective Hart, who nine years ago looked him low and for the man. A few minutes later Whiteway was in prison in the Manhattan Detention Bureau. At first he resolutely denied his identity. Later he broke down and admitted it.

Theodore Johanson was wounded in Leggett's Lane, Oak Point, Bronx, in the early morning hours of July, 1901, in the "hub" of the highway. John Fisher and Massey Schofield held Johanson up. Fisher, convicted of firing the fatal shot, is serving a life sentence. Schofield confessed and named Whiteway as the third man in the case. Schofield got six years for his part in the crime. His confession told how he, Whiteway, and Fisher, being "broke," held up Johanson and a man called Haffner, and how Fisher, when Johanson made off, fired twice, bringing his man down. Johanson died three days later.

Hart, then, in the Manhattan Detention Bureau, was one of those who tried to find him. All efforts were in vain. Whiteway got out of the city and went West, where he worked for a time on a ranch. Then the irresistible homesickness seized him.

How He Recognized Whiteway. He recognized Whiteway by a peculiar way he has of turning his head. When Whiteway asked him for money, Hart said he noticed this peculiarity. At the Harlem Detective Bureau, where the prisoner persisted in his confession, taken Captain Kahne sent for Policeman Foster, of the West 125th Street Station, who had worked on the Johanson murder case. As soon as Whiteway was taken to the station, Foster saw the prisoner he said, "It's Whiteway." In spite of beard and mustache. Then the man realized that further denial was useless.

MOB IS DISPERSED

Angry Negroes Threaten One of Their Part in Atlanta.

Atlanta, Ga., May 22.—Incensed because three of their race had been wounded as the result of a pistol duel between two negro men, 500 inhabitants of the negro section of Atlanta this afternoon attacked one of the duelists, the other having escaped, and it is stated, were about to lynch him when they were dispersed by the arrival of the police and the breaking of a rather severe storm. The duelists, A. B. White and John Henry Perkins, wounded two negro women and a negro man during their exchange of shots. Perkins was shot in the head.

White took refuge in a house, after arming himself with an axe, and he mob battered down the door with bricks and had secured their intended victim when the officers and storm intervened.

SHOCK AT SALT LAKE

Sunday Morning Slumber Disturbed by Earthquake.

Salt Lake City, May 22.—Sunday morning slumber of the residents was disturbed by a violent rocking of the earth, the seismograph at the State university recording a disturbance of thirty seconds. The earthquake was sharp, and caused considerable alarm, as the tremor was local, being confined within a radius of fifty miles. Slight damage is reported from the towns of Bingham and Garfield. The shock occurred at 7:28 A. M., and was followed by two other shocks—one at 8:35 A. M. and the other at 11:24.

"PLAYING SUICIDE"

Revolver Goes Off, and Boy Is Fatally Injured.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 22.—Joseph Klein, eleven years old, was fatally shot this afternoon, and John Allen, aged seventeen, who admits having shot his companion, and another boy, confessed the deed. The boy declared that the three were "playing suicide." Allen had placed the revolver at Klein's head, instructing him how to commit the deed. The weapon was accidentally discharged. The bullet passed through Klein's head back of the right ear. He died soon after being taken to his mother's home nearby.

CRUELTY TO JEWS HAS BEEN RENEWED

Orders Issued Against Babes That Their Parents May Be Forced Away.

SHORT NOTICE IS GIVEN

Victims Herded Together Like Convicts and Driven From Moscow and Kieff.

Berlin, May 22.—News of fresh official Russian cruelties against the Jews reaches Germany. Expulsions are taking place on an increasingly extensive scale. Jewish residents of Moscow are the latest to feel the lash of the persecution.

Instructions have been given to the local authorities to reduce the number of Jewish residents in the ancient capital at all costs. The result of these directions, which emanate from the highest official quarters, is that expulsions are being carried out with hideous, incredible cruelty.

As a pretext for ridding the community of adult Jews, orders of expulsion are enforced against the children—in some cases against babes in arms in order that their parents may thus indirectly be forced to leave the country.

The authorities seek out children whose fathers happen to be away on business and expel the children on the ground that their right of residence becomes void by the absence of the fathers.

While the crusade against the Jews of Moscow is being carried into effect, the expelled Jews are sent away in batches. Only a few are permitted to depart according to their own pleasure. Two days of grace at the most is allowed in any case. The Jewish population of Kieff is made with despair and terror. Families which have always enjoyed the fullest immunity from persecution in the past are now in daily receipt of eviction notices.

DISPUTE IS SETTLED

United States and Canada Get Together in Boundary Line.

Washington, D. C., May 22.—The international boundary between the United States and Canada along the southeastern coast of Maine has been settled by a treaty signed yesterday by Ambassador Bryce and Secretary of State Knox, as running from a point in the Bay of Fundy, between Treat Island and Friarhead, and extending through the bay to the middle of Grand Manan channel. The treaty, which expires in 1912, will be submitted to the Senate to-morrow for approval. The line was located without resort to the arbitration provided for in the treaty of 1892 between Great Britain and the United States.

LAUNCH CAPSIZES

One Life Is Lost, While Five Are Miraculously Saved.

Cincinnati, O., May 22.—The capsizing of an electric launch in the Ohio River here this afternoon resulted in the loss of one life and the miraculous escape of five others.

Edward Butke, thirty years of age, a clerk in the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad offices, was drowned, while five companions, none of whom could swim, managed to stay on the surface and were picked up one by one by skiffs that were put out from both shores. The launch sank to the bottom. The cause of the accident is unknown.

CHILDREN SAVED

But Auto Plunges Down Embankment, Fatally Injuring Two.

Catskill, N. Y., May 22.—To avoid running over two children near Saugerties, a touring car containing the owner, Fred Lewis, cigar manufacturer, of Saugerties, Mrs. Nettie Naylor, Louis B. Decker, a druggist, and Miss Mabel Van Valkenburg, all of this village, was sent down an embankment this morning by the chauffeur, Frank Kerbert.

The big machine turned turtle, and Mrs. Naylor and Lewis were pinned beneath it. Both it is feared, will die of their injuries. Decker is suffering from shock, but the others escaped without a scratch.

Crushed to Death.
Providence, R. I., May 22.—While laughing at a power boat, which he had been three years building for his own use, James Savola was crushed to death and ironed out by the boat.

Both it is feared, will die of their injuries. Decker is suffering from shock, but the others escaped without a scratch.

GIPSY PRINCESS TIRES OF TRAVEL

Fifteen-Year-Old Bride Loves Her Husband, but Does Not Like Rain.

Elizabeth, N. J., May 22.—She still loves her gipsy prince, Millen Johnson, but the sixteen-year-old bride, Princess Catherine Filibata Johnson, is back home in Elizabeth. The march of the gipsy tribe to Rhode Island was a bit too strenuous for the granddaughter of the Hargises of old Kentucky. The long drives through the country, where farmers looked on with suspicion, the halt at night in lonely woods, the arduous pitches of tents and the hasty breaking camp in the morning for another day's march wore on her, and so she is home. Millen, the eighteen-year-old husband, is still with his people. He is paying her $10 a week. There is a mystery in Catherine's life that she has tried hard to unravel. So have newspapers and the police of Elizabeth, but without avail. The whereabouts of her mother, who was Mamie Hargis, of Breathitt county, Ky., is the mystery. She ran away from Kentucky and married Lightfoot Taylor Filibata, of Richmond. After five children had been born the father died. The family came to New York.

Mother Married Here.
After struggling in vain here to keep her brood together, the mother placed them in the Five Points Mission of Industry. Then she went to Philadelphia and was married to Carl Marison. The children soon were sent to homes in the country.

Elizabeth Johnson grew up in a family at Kanona, Steuben county, N. Y., she started out to find the mother, whose tear-stained face, just as she looked when she kissed her good-by in the mission, has haunted her. She drifted to Elizabeth, a friendless little girl, working as a servant. There she visited the gipsy camp of the Johnsons. Young Millen watched her as she stood before Grandmother Johnson to have her palm read and heard that "a handsome dark man" would cross her path. He resolved to be that dark man—and was.

The story has been told of the marriage in the Catholic Church at Elizabeth on February 26. Father O'Neill tying the knot under a special dispensation from the bishop, for the girl was only fifteen years of age.

LIKES GYPSIES, BUT NOT RAIN.

"You don't think that I am going back on the gipsy life just because I am home," she said yesterday in the parlor of a woman friend on Maple Street. "I am not. But the long rides after driving rain on the road, outside the tent when I woke in the night tired me. I talked it over with Millen and Grandmother Johnson, the queen, and grandma patted me on the cheek and said, 'Poor little girl, it's new to you.' I asked Millen to let me come home for a little while, and here I am.

"While we lived here in camp at Elizabeth it was all right. I liked the jingle of gold coins around my neck and it was lovely to be called 'The Princess.' People came and looked at me and asked questions. I told fortunes and made much money. But then came the breaking up of the camp and the march to New England, and though Millen had a $500 house wagon made for me, everything got on my nerves. The women had to do all the hard work. They would help to pitch the tents, they would get wood, build the fire and cook. At bedtime the women would tie the horses and put more wood on the fire.

BECAME A FORTUNE TELLER.

"Outside Fall River, in a wood, we pitched for a month. Every day we went to Boston in the train to tell fortunes along Washington Street. Sometimes two women went at a time into a saloon to tell fortunes, and often got as much as $15 in one place.

"But somehow I didn't like it. I had a feeling against the gypsies. They're as honest as any other people. But I got tired of it, and one day Millen found me in the tent crying.

At first he was mad, but then he said he knew the rough life was too much for me and he'd let me go home. Every one gave me something, and Millen and grandma gave me money and a ticket home. Millen swore dreadfully about what he'd do to any one who ever was rude to me.

"I'm going to find my mother and sisters now. I've just heard one of my brothers has grown up into a fine doctor in Pennsylvania."

"LANDS" HER FIANCE

Promises Forgiveness and Places Him in Jail.

Chicago, May 22.—Miss Mayme Ryerson played detective so successfully that to-day she was able to hand over her former fiancé, Walter Kutchler, to the police when he arrived here from San Francisco. Both are twenty-one, and their homes are in Milwaukee. Miss Ryerson accused Kutchler of obtaining $300 from her a year ago by false pretenses. She learned of his whereabouts recently and wrote him, offering forgiveness and asking him to return. She met him at the depot today in company with Detective Gorman, of Milwaukee, who placed him under arrest and returned with him to Milwaukee to-night.

Favor Postal Savings Banks.
Cincinnati, May 22.—Resolutions favoring postal savings banks were passed to-day by delegates representing 8,000 members of the New England division of the National German-American Alliance at the annual convention here to-day.
